However, the exact dimensions depend heavily on the panel's technology, wattage, and the manufacturer's design. Understanding these specifications is crucial for determining roof. Thin film solar panels are lightweight and flexible, and while they offer the lowest efficiency of the three (6 to 15%), they are great for certain installations where the roof may not be able to accommodate the larger, heavier panels. They are all produced to exacting standards under different processes, but what they do have in common are their sizes. 75mm (G1), 166mm (M6), 182mm (M10), 210mm (G12).
